The Home Energy Assistance Program (HEAP) is an assistance program designed to help low income families meet the high costs of home heating during the winter months. Applications may be completed by the applicant him/herself and mailed directly to the state. The Winter Crisis Program can prevent disconnection of heating utilities and restore heating services to households that have been disconnected. WCP can also pay for an emergency delivery of bulk fuel when the supply is down to 10 days or less. Households can receive WCP assistance one time per program year. The Summer Crisis Program provides assistance to eligible families to offset high electricity costs associated with the summer cooling season. Applicants for SCP assistance must be 60 years of age or older or have a documented breathing problem. The Home Weatherization Assistance Program helps families reduce heating and cooling costs by increasing efficient energy use. By analyzing the home's energy efficiency, staff can install insulation and weather stripping or take other measures to reduce the family's heating and cooling costs while increasing their comfort.

The Home Energy Assistance Program (HEAP) is an assistance program designed to help low income families meet the high costs of home heating during the winter months. Applications may be completed by the applicant him/herself and mailed directly to the state. The Winter Crisis Program can prevent disconnection of heating utilities and restore heating services to households that have been disconnected. WCP can also pay for an emergency delivery of bulk fuel when the supply is down to 10 days or less. Households can receive WCP assistance one time per program year. The Summer Crisis Program provides assistance to eligible families to offset high electricity costs associated with the summer cooling season. Applicants for SCP assistance must be 60 years of age or older or have a documented breathing problem. The Home Weatherization Assistance Program helps families reduce heating and cooling costs by increasing efficient energy use. By analyzing the home's energy efficiency, staff can install insulation and weather
